

“No more parts & service problems. We’ve got a Lippmann.”

Sam Richards, Equipment Manager
R&R Construction Company, Inc.

R&R Construction Company, Inc., an excavating contractor who tackles large site development projects and mountains of tough New Jersey granite, understands crushing hard rock and moving equipment from site to site. Originally, the company recycled asphalt and concrete pavement for various jobs with a portable impactor. Then they employed a track-mounted crusher as more projects involved processing virgin rock.

“There were problems obtaining parts and service support for both European made crushers,” says Sam Richards, Equipment Manager at R&R Construction. When it came time to upgrade to a big, high-volume jaw, the company searched for a more reliable partner.

“90% of the crushers today are made in Europe, and few are built in the U.S. Then we went to the Lippmann factory in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Once we saw Lippmann’s Heavy-Duty 3048 Jaw and met their personnel, we immediately knew they were the type of people we wanted to do business with. Lippmann was a different experience than we’d previously had in the crushing business.

They’re good people who can immediately support your needs. You don’t get passed around, or wait for parts to be shipped from overseas. The 3048 we purchased is an excellent machine. Its productivity surpassed all our expectations. Another advantage is we can move the plant in one piece. Just hook up the trailer and we’re off to the next job site. We couldn’t be happier. We’re already buying a second identical plant,” stated Richards.

New Jersey customers know they can count on R&R Construction as a reliable, premier contractor. Want a quality crushing equipment partner to help make the crushing end of your business more reliable? Contact Lippmann today.
